Climate change is something that many corporate functions contend with. Even beyond physical climate risk, many companies have emissions reductions goals, and they are eager to find insights. The BMO Sustainability Leaders podcast has featured speakers from leading sustainability practitioners with a broad audience including investors, NGOs, academics, and business leaders. The objective of Sustainability Leaders podcast is to raise awareness of BMO's Climate Ambition to be a lead partner for its clients in the transition to a net-zero world while positioning BMO experts as industry leaders in the growing field of sustainability.

BMO's approach to its Sustainability Leaders podcast platform is fresh because:

- It features hosts from not only from the Sustainability Office, but from throughout the bank and its lines of business;
- It focuses on issues of importance to its audience and doesn't only cover financial angles;
- Guests include high-profile companies and organizations such as Bloomberg, the U.S. Department of Energy, and NASA among others.
